

There have been many people in my life that have helped me. To choose one person that has helped me the most is quite difficult. I have my father who is always up for a game of catch. Mother, who is willing to move so she knows I get a good education. Even though they have helped me much, I'd have to say it would be my sister.

She lived in Portland and I lived in Gearhart, it seemed she was always there. It has always been convenient having our age difference. Meg could look at things (especially problems) at a different angle than I could. Someday I hope I can repay her for all she has done for me.

She knows when to interfere and when not to. I feel I can tell her anything. Meg speaks the truth, and says what needs to be said. Even if it hurts.

Now she lives four blocks away. She is married, has a child of her own and a stepson. Megan teaches first grade. (once I was even in her class) Every day at 4:15 pm I call her on her cellphone. We talk about the day and complain.

If someone helpfull in my life were to get an award I have to choose my sister. She is a great role model and is always ready to teach, help or listen. I think she deserves a gold medal, don't you?
